$200 or $300 MORE, AND WHAT A DIFFERENCE!

I once bought a 98-cent razor. For two weeks I shaved with it. Then I bought another one. I paid $3.50 and I still have it. Nobody can persuade me to part with it. And I challenge anybody to convince me that a 98-cent razor is cheaper than a $3.50 one.

No, gentlemen, the $3.50 razor is cheaper by far. It costs more, keeps a keen edge, gives me a good shave every day and lasts a lifetime.

So with the Chalmers car. It costs a little more—perhaps $200 or $300 more than some other cars. And what a difference that $300 makes!

The Chalmers keeps going day in, day out; year after year. It always looks the part. About all you need do is look after the gas, oil, water and grease cups.

And Chalmers gives five-year life. The average Chalmers owner keeps his car at least five years before he sells it second-hand or trades it in.

Quite a difference between the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers and many other cars in that one respect.

Aside from all this—the performance of the 1917 Chalmers will make you catch your breath.

Vermont Acts Quickly.

(Hartford, Conn., Courant.)

Since the Vermont National Guard was sent to the border Governor Charles W. Gates has been wondering just how the dependents of the soldiers were going to fare. He has, it is said, endeavored to find out how long the men were likely to stay and as to this he has found out no more than the people in the other states. Seeing a hope of the return of the troops the governor has now called a special session of the legislature to meet on Thursday next to provide compensation for the men in addition to what they receive from the federal government and to give some measure of relief to their families and dependents. Evidently the governor of Vermont is tired of waiting, watchful or otherwise.

Anyway, an ounce of prevention costs much less than a pound of cure.
